Dear Dr Anastassiadis

THE GLOBAL YEAR OF SCIENCE – 2007

I am delighted to announce that the International Biographical Centre of Cambridge, England has declared the year 2007 as the Global Year of Science. This year there will be many events to celebrate the work of international science and, in particular, to reward and recognise the work of scientists whose major scientific contributions show tangible and significant achievements.

The Archimedes Award will be made to a select few Laureates, who in the eyes of the Advisory and Recognition Board of the IBC, have reached such goals and have been recognised for their endeavours both nationally and internationally. Each Laureate will be given the opportunity to attend, if he or she so wishes, an Award Ceremony at the next available World Forum, for which you will have to be registered. Please tick the box on the enclosed form for further information.

I am delighted to say that your name has been ratified as a recipient of The Archimedes Award and that, therefore, you are entitled to have your Award presented to you at the next available World Forum. This Award is named after one of history's most acclaimed mathematicians whose theorems and philosophies became world known and because he gained his reputation in his own lifetime.

We know that from our biographical research your reputation has been gained in your own lifetime and are therefore a most worthy recipient of The Archimedes Award. Each Laureate will be fully identified on the IBC website and will have the reasons for the honour shown in an article to be published in a suitable issue of the International Biographical Association newsletter which is distributed to leaders worldwide. It is anticipated that many Laureates will receive further recognition from international scientific bodies as a result of receiving The Archimedes Award. Each Laureate will also be entitled to commemorate this high honour by ordering symbols of the Award.

The Archimedes Medal of Honour will be struck in metal with a silver finish. The name of the Award and the emblem shown on one side along with your name engraved on the reverse. Each Medal of Honour will have a multi coloured neck ribbon and will be sent to you in a presentation case showing the name of Toye, Kenning and Spencer, the world renowned manufacturers of regalia to Royalty and Civic Leaders.

The Archimedes Certificate of High Achievement will be printed in full colour on fine parchment paper and will measure 8½ inches by 11 inches - landscape. Full mention will be given to the Global Year of Science – 2007. Not only will your full name be shown but also your reason for selection along with the official date of your selection and the personal signature of three officers of the IBC, including myself. Your photograph can be included and once the Certificate is sealed it will be laminated onto a fine wooden base, ready for instant hanging.

Congratulations on your selection and I urge you to take advantage of the above benefits by studying the enclosed brochure and Reservation Form.

I look forward to hearing from you at your earliest convenience.

Sincerely,

Nicholas S. Law
 Director General
